THAT the wants of those of our customers who remove from the city during the summer months shall receive prompt and intelligent attention, we have had our Mail Order Organization brought to a high state of efficiency.

It will be a very material aid to us, however, if our customers will, when ordering items to be charged, state full name and city address under which the account is carried. Miss Jean Wilson was the stellar attraction, with her rare gems of wit and wit, many who heard her on one of her previous visits to the shore were numbered among the audience that evening, and she aptly pronounced her performance a delightful entertainment. It was the reader's original manner of interpretation of her characters, each separate picture taking with her audience with immediate effect. This was especially noticeable in her essaying the quaint mannerisms of the little schoolgirl, the boldness of the student, the mischievous schoolboy, as she delivered poems and compositions, at a school entertainment. Miss Wilson's "Overboard" and "The Little Schoolboy" were particularly well received. She received personal congratulations from many in the audience.

MANY CHILDREN PLAY

Washington Grounds Opened Yesterday Afternoon.

MADE POSSIBLE BY GENEROSITY

Tag Day Contributions Enable Playground Association to Furnish Latest Apparatus for the Little Folks of the Capital—List of the Teachers for White and Black.

Many young faces beamed yesterday afternoon when the thirty playgrounds, located in various sections of Washington, were thrown open to children.

The establishing and maintaining of several new playgrounds was made possible by the generosity of Washington citizens on Tag Day. Modern apparatus has been installed in each of the playgrounds, and in addition there are instructors to teach them fair play and show them how to derive the most benefit from the games. The playgrounds will be open daily from 9:30 to 11:30 o'clock in the morning and from 5 to 8 o'clock in the evening.

Instructions Given. Henry S. Curtis, supervisor of playgrounds, addressed a meeting of the directors of the different grounds in the Franklin School yesterday afternoon, and gave them instructions. He said the work of the playground director is not easy. To lead children without bossing them, to control them by love, yet to get prompt obedience, and to keep a number of games going at the same time required a high order of ability.

He offered the following suggestions: "Have a general programme of play for every day. Make a brief special programme for each coming day. Always be on time. Have something interesting for the children the first period, morning and afternoon. Always have it. Do not wait for more children, if only one is present. Have games the last part of the morning and afternoon. When it rains, use the playground director is not easy. To lead children without bossing them, to control them by love, yet to get prompt obedience, and to keep a number of games going at the same time required a high order of ability.
